Honjohama Beach

A beach located right next to Urashima Shrine. It is said that the "Tokoyo Beach" that appears in the legend of Urashima Taro refers to Honjo Beach.

Urashima Shrine

This shrine is the birthplace of Urashima Taro and is also called Urashima Shrine or Ura Shrine. The oldest official history in Japan, "Nihon Shoki," describes the local legend of Urashima, and the tradition is still passed down in this area.

Historic Site of Japan Heritage

"Tango Daibutsu"

During the Taisho era, employees of silk mills who went out to see the sights of Tokyo fell ill with the Spanish flu, and many died after returning home. Daibustu statue was erected in memory of him.
